

INTERPERSONAL VIOLENCE

Families experiencing intimate partner violence face significant emotional, behavioral, social, and physical consequences over their lifetime. Pediatric providers play an important role in educating and connecting families to certified Interpersonal violence advocates.

This training provides information about intimate partner violence, the methods of control, the short and long-term health consequences, how to implement intimate partner violence education into clinical practice, advice for mandated reporting, and a connection to local and statewide resources.

Practices receive:

- Validated educational tool
- Resources and/or referral information
- 1 CME credit

Learn more about Educating Practices or contact the Educating Practices team to schedule a training session.